Council Approve Purchase Sewerage System Plans

Coleman town council, at its meeting this week met with Tom Miyanaga of Underwood, McLellan and Associates and, after a lengthy discussion, made a motion that the town offer the engineering firm the sum of $500 for a revised set of plans of the town's sewerage system.

Underwood, McLellan and Associates, who engineered the project for the town, had suggested the town pay an estimated $750 for a revised set of plans which the town felt should have been included in the engineering fee of $32,000 that the firm charged Coleman for the job. The revised plans are needed by the town for future work, repairs, extensions and other work that will be necessitated as time goes by.

Ernest Fantin of Blairmore, who operates an ambulance service in the Pass in conjunction with Fantin's Chapel Limited, was present and informed council that he wished to drop the ambulance business as of June 1, 1967.

Mr. Fantin informed council that the ambulance service was being subsidized by the funeral home. He informed the council he was going to inform the Blairmore council of his intention and felt that this way the towns could possibly get together to provide a much-needed ambulance service for the area. Coleman council will meet Blairmore council to discuss the matter.

Chartered accountant Alex Wells of Blairmore, was appointed as auditor for the town of Coleman.

Council approved a two bay soft spray car wash business coming into Coleman. Council will prepare for land to be sold to the new business that intend to build east of the present drive-in hamburger stand at the east end of town on highway 3.

The town secretary was appointed to arrange for suitable transportation (either by horseback or horse-drawn democrat) for members of council to meet the "Pony Express Riders" as they arrive in town on April 10.

A by-law providing discounts for tax payments had its first and second readings and will be now brought up for finalization at the next meeting.

A by-law is to be prepared to provide authority for towing away parked cars during winter snow removal and for other purposes as well.

A letter was received from the Fire Commissioners office complimenting the Coleman Volunteer Fire Brigade for the excellent work the unit does year round and for the efforts put forth during Fire Prevention Week. A certificate of merit was enclosed with the letter.

Council will look into the possibility of getting a written contract from the Attorney-General's Department outlining the duties of the RCMP police who are now policing Coleman at no cost to the town.

Council approved the town crew removing a number of dead poplar trees in the vicinity of the town's park.

A letter from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind requesting a grant, was tabled as the Institute canvass the town for funds during the year.

Coleman Hotel Closes

The Coleman Hotel closed its doors at midnight, March 31st, after serving Coleman for the past 63 years.

The 30-room frame establishment was built in 1904. The hotel rooms and beverage room will no longer operate but the cafe, operated by Charlie Lou will continue to serve the public.

The hotel is owned by Lawrence Schlander of the Merkle Hotel Company, who stated that the closure was due to a lack of business and that no plans have as yet been made for the future of the three-storey building.

Mr. Schlander and the Merkle Hotel Company also own the Grand Union Hotel, which will now be the only hotel operating in Coleman.

A third hotel, "The Empire" on Coleman main street, was razed by fire several years ago, and was never rebuilt.

Habitat, an experimental housing complex at Expo 67, will have aerial streets, rooftop playground and private gardens.

Officials Visit Hospital

K. A. Atkinson, Construction and Equipment Officer, Hospitals Division, Department of Public Health, indicated March 22nd that the replacement of Crows Nest Pass Municipal Hospital could not be considered until the early 1970's.

However, he added that the department was prepared to spend considerable amounts to temporarily upgrade the present hospital accommodation and facilities.

This information was disclosed following a meeting Wednesday between Mr. Atkinson, H. A. Henderson, Program and Development Architect, Department of Public Works; V. Bathy, Chief Architect, Department of Public Works, and V. J. Horejsi, Senior Inspector, Hospitals Division Department of Public Health and the board members, administrator and medical staff of the Crows Nest Pass Municipal Hospital.

The meeting was called to discuss the feasibility of remodeling and renovating the present 80-bed hospital or replacing it with a 50-bed unit.

The board of the hospital had recently called for tenders for a renovation project, but figures tendered by contractors were near the staggering quarter million dollar mark. It was then decided to look into the possibility of having a new hospital built to serve the Crows Nest Pass area.

APRIL 9th to 15th NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK

This one week of the year which is set aside annually for special attention to conservation takes on added significance in Centennial Year, as we pause to review a century of history and peer expectantly into the future. No other nation is so richly endowed, on a per capita basis, with the resources of farmland, forest, fish, fresh water, open space, unspoiled wilderness, wildlife and natural beauty. These are still the resources which are the foundation of our economy, and our social well-being. Conservation of these renewable natural resources is a matter of great importance to every Canadian.

We have not always been wise in our use of resources in the past. It was easy to believe in the myth of inexhaustible abundance, in the early years of nationhood. Who would have believed that the myriads of passenger pigeons could ever be depleted to the point of extermination, that the white pine forests of eastern Canada or the coastal forests of the Pacific could be overcut, or that the buffalo could disappear entirely from the prairie grasslands? We have learned that no resource is inexhaustible, but have we learned the lesson well enough?

One need only look to the recent national conference on pollution to find grounds for questioning the wisdom with which we have been using our environment.

Massive inputs of capital through the A.R.D.A. program serve as an expensive reminder of misuse of land, capital and human energy.

We are no longer a nation of primary producers, of rural people living close to the land. As we progress toward greater industrialization, with more and more of us living in artificial, urban environments, will we retain sufficient "feeling for the land" to foster plans and programs which will ensure wise use of resources and maintain the quality of our environment? The Canadian Wildlife Federation and its member organizations believe that Canadians can continue to enjoy prosperity and a rewarding quality of life, but only by making a concerted effort to preserve the foundations of our economic and social wealth. Their theme for National Wildlife Week in this Centennial Year — "Conservation in Canada's Second Century" — implies an urgent need to develop a "conservation ethic" to serve as a public conscience in matters relating to our use of the land and its resources.

We do already possess most of the information needed to manage resources wisely. If we continue to let pollution of land, air and water lower the quality of our lives, if we continue to ignore the recommendations of regional and urban planners, if we allow disproportionate distribution of population to cause greater congestion in already crowded regions, if we fail to preserve open space to serve aesthetic and recreational needs, if we continue to use land as a commodity to serve economic and political expediency — it will not be because we were not warned or did not know how to do better.

Wise use of resources is not so much a question of expert knowledge as one of public policy. Public policy depends on awareness and understanding on the part of every citizen. Will our public bodies, our educational institutions and private organizations succeed in providing the understanding which is basic to a national "conservation conscience"?

The answer to the question has particular significance as we enter a second century of nationhood. We must hope that we have reached a state of maturity which will ensure that the answer will be in the affirmative.

Report From Parliament Hill (Lawrence E. Kindt, M.P.)

When John Diefenbaker recommended to Her Majesty the appointment of Georges Vanier as Governor General of Canada in 1959, nobody had any idea of the extent that the late Governor General and his gracious wife would endear themselves to the people of Canada and bring such lustre to the office of Governor General.

It has been said that "no one is irreplaceable", but, like most trite expressions, this is not always true. It will be very difficult indeed to replace the Vaniers.

Because of his French background and his very great personal qualifications, the late Governor General has been a superlative unifying force in our country, which has been so very necessary at a time when so much publicity has been given to the Separatist Movement in Quebec.

There has, of course, been considerable speculation regarding the successor to our late Governor General, and indeed, an appointment must be made very speedily since the new incumbent will have many duties to perform very soon because of the multitude of ceremonies associated with our Centennial Year. At the moment, the Prime Minister is taking a brief and much needed vacation, and it is quite likely that when he returns, a new Governor General will be appointed.

On many occasions, we, as Members of Parliament, were privileged to be guests at Government House and on these occasions, the Governor General often entertained us by telling us anecdotes of his experiences. He enjoyed a good joke and my personal impression was that he was a warm, witty and friendly person. By the way, I am particularly happy that the three Centenarians residing in Macleod Riding will receive or have received, Certificates personally signed by Governor General Vanier.

One of these Certificates has already been presented by me to Mrs. Anna Weir of Fort Macleod; one is to be presented to Mrs. Caroline Finley of Black Diamond about May 20th or, at least, the time when the Centennial Caravan is in Black Diamond, and still another Centenarian, Mr. William Henry of High River, is to receive his Certificate on his 100th birthday, Wednesday, July 26th, 1967. The plans, made by local committees to honor these three Centenarians and enable the public to fully participate, marks one of the finest activities in our Centennial year. It brings Canada's birthday down to the common people and children who make up this great country of ours.

Lions Name Bings Winners

Mrs. Emory Hruby of Bellevue was the lucky winner of the five-number $25 bingo at the Lions bingo night. Other winners were:

$100, Mrs. Mary Lemche; $12, Mrs. Young, Harry Jepson, Tom Holstead.

$10, Mrs. J. McQue, Betty Aschacher, Angelo Toppazo.

$6, Mrs. R. Parry, Mrs. G. Shannon. $4, Carl Noddo, Muriel Russell, Helen Coccolone, Mrs. N. Nelson, Mrs. Pollack, Mrs. M. Pisony.

$3, Marg Gates, Mrs. Pisony, Bea Pined, George Ogstron and Mrs. E. Morgan.

The next bingo will be held on April 12, when besides the $100 to go jackpot there will be five $12, five $10 and $20 in five numbers and other bingos according to attendance.

Twenty thousand Oshawa built cars and trucks were exported by General Motors of Canada in 1964.

Letters To The Editor

6908 - 100 Ave.
Edmonton, Alta.

Mr. T. Holstead,
The Journal,
Coleman, Alberta.

Dear Mr. Holstead:
I am enclosing a cheque for The Journal. Please send it for another year.

When I stop to think that it is now 13 years since we left Coleman I realize why I recognize so few names in the news! This is emphasized, too, when I think of the little boy Rick was when we left, and see the young man (I wouldn't dare say "big boy") he is now. And it's almost 21 years since I lived near you on Third street.

It took us a long time to really like the city life - I don't think Joe ever did.

I am still with the provincial government and enjoy my work as Travel Information Officer. Hope to get down the Pass this spring. I take a good deal of kidding from my fellow workers—they claim I only recognize one Alberta mountain as being outstanding. Well — maybe there is only the Crows Nest!!

Please give my best regards to Mrs. Holstead and to Audrey and to anyone else who may be interested.

Sincerely,
Winifred (Dunlop) McIntyre.

A book entitled "Thank You, Canada" will be featured at The Netherlands pavilion at Expo 67. It contains articles written by Dutch people in tribute to Canadians for liberating Holland.
